

BOYS SEE THE POINT.

They Make Big Money. Make It Easy. No Capital Invested. How They Do It.

There are several thousand boys and hundreds of men engaged in St. Louis in a business which brings a weekly profit of from $8,000 to $10,000. It's the selling of daily papers. Hundreds of families live comfortably on the profits of the sale of daily newspapers.

In St. Louis the favorite newspaper with the boys is the POST-DISPATCH, because it sells best. An investigation has shown that the boys sell more copies of the daily POST-DISPATCH than the combined sales of the two other English evening papers.

One of the pleasures the boys find in selling papers is they are their "own boss." They come and go when they please. While many have regular corners and newstands, others merely walk the streets each having his own peculiar way of "crying" out his papers.

The situation is quite different on Sunday. The papers are printed in the morning and by six o'clock the boys and men are out in search of buyers.

There are four English Sunday papers. Many boys take out 300 hundred papers. A boy taking from two to three hundred papers has all he can do to get over the ground.

Sundays as on week days finds the POST-DISPATCH everywhere. It's a ready seller. It's the "most for the money." The Sunday POST-DISPATCH has many original and exclusive features, including the Colored Comic Weekly.

These great newspaper offices have what is called a "Circulation Department," the object of which is to promote the sale of the papers. This department answers all requests for sample copies (which are sent free), and so on. In the country as in St. Louis, they are constantly looking for "agents" (boys or men to represent them). This is done by the aid of traveling men and correspondence. All letters are promptly answered. It is pleasant work, especially in the towns outside of St. Louis. Boys in the outside towns are not called newsboys, but agents.

More money is made outside of St. Louis because the selling price is more and the profit greater.

If you would like to be an agent for the Post-Dispatch in this city write to the circulation department of Post-Dispatch, St. Louis.
